The Kima International School of Theology (KIST) was established in 1995 by East African Churches of God to train leaders for work in the Church of God. KIST graduates serve the church throughout the East African region in churches, schools, and in non-profit work.

This trip to KIST will involve learning about theological education in East Africa, its challenges and successes. You'll have the opportunity to meet and develop friendships with students and professors of KIST and learn about their ministry preparation.

In addition to spending time at KIST, time will be set aside for a little bit of travel and the chance to see some of East Africa's countryside.
